Please state the reason you gave the recommendation above. Please give the author specific guidance regarding revisions, differentiating between optional and mandatory changes.

➢ Confidentiality and Anonymity

The contents and the very existence of a submitted manuscript must be considered as confidential until the article is published. If the article is not accepted for the proceedings, then all aspects of its review are to be considered as confidential without time limit. Reviewers are requested to adhere to this important principle, no use, share, or disclose unpublished information in a manuscript except with the permission of the authors.

ICAAI conferences use double-blind review, where reviewers don't know identity of authors. To keep reviewer confidentiality, we never disclose the names of reviewers to authors. The review process aims to ensure that all authors have equal opportunity for publication of their papers.

The term used above, implies (1) that the reviewer shall keep confidential material in a safe place where it can't be accessed by others, (2) that he shall not divulge the confidential material to any other person except if approved by authors, and (3) that any other person that obtains access to the material, after approval, shall also be informed about and accept the same rule.
